* The returns till 2005 are calculated on an XIRR basis.

* XIRR is the internal rate of return of an investment that does not necessarily have periodic payments. This function is closely related to the net present value function (NPV). The IRR is the interest rate for a series of cash flows where the net present value is zero.

Portfolio Evaluation and Mistakes

We were up 0.1% for the quarter. In comparison the Indian large cap indices were up 8.0%. Although we do not like underperforming against the indices, we believe that one quarter or even one year is a short and incorrect time frame to measure performance.

We sold two positions this quarter. The returns on these positions were (44.1%) (held for 54 months) and 119.5% (held for 17 months) excluding dividends.

The first position we sold is something that we have written about at length in many of our previous letters. It was a mistake we made in a company called Himatsingka Seide. We simply exited our position this quarter. We are happy to stop the nose-bleed. We will write more about this in our annual letter to you.

The second position we sold is something we started selling a couple of quarters ago. We still hold a small position in the company in the portfolio. This was part of the expansion bucket.

We are getting increasingly concentrated in the fund. Investors should expect greater volatility in the NAV over short durations because of this increased concentration. We are very happy about our largest position which is over 20% of the fund. We will write more about this in our annual letter to you.

As we have written earlier we will be writing a detailed annual letter after the end of the December to March quarter every year along with briefer quarterly letters like this one. Please feel free to get in touch with us for any questions or thoughts. We deeply appreciate your interest with us.

Warm regards,
